The Interview

U: What was your favorite moment in the making of Standing Still?

MP: Watching Colin Hanks squirm when he had to get naked. He had to do some crazy things and he was very embarrassed about it. But I think my favorite moment was actually after the film. We did so much press and people came from all over the country. They treated us so nice and I got to go to Vegas so much.

U: Is there anyone in particular that you would like to work with again?

MP: The cast was a really great group of actors and I'm still friends with the director, Matthew Cole Weiss. I mostly worked with Colin and I would love to work with him again because we had such a good rapport.

U: What type of girl are you?

MP: I'm actually kind of a tomboy. I'm a guy's kind of girl. I love hanging out with just like a group of guys and being real. I'm a total dork! I like snowboarding, surfing, doing fun, cheesy, crazy things. I love reading. I love to go out to dinner, go on hikes, do nature things and travel.

U: What is your #1 Fear?

MP: Not reaching my full potential.

U: What type of pressures do you face by being a sex symbol?

MP: I think there are a lot of pressures, especially in Hollywood. It's tough. I find that I wear a bathing suit in a lot of different roles. But recently I've done a lot of films where it's very much about the work and the character, and that's kind of reassuring that it's not only about being a sex symbol. And now I'm going back to that. I think it's because I'm like, "OK, I've proven myself as an actress, now I can be kind of a sex symbol."

U: Since you love animals so much, would you like to go to the zoo with me sometime?

MP: (blush & giggle)

U: You can get back to me with that answer! What would your perfect day involve?

MP: Getting on a plane and flying to some remote island somewhere with someone that I was very smitten with; lying on the beach, drinking margaritas and eating chicken.

U: What is your favorite music performer/genre of music?

MP: I have such an eclectic taste. Honestly, I love everything. That's so weird; I can't even put my finger on exactly what is in my CD player right now. Actually, what's in my CD player right now is the Hairspray CD, because I have this thing for Hairspray in two days, so I have to learn a song.

U: Stop me if I get too personal. What type of underwear do you prefer? Thongs or nothing at all?

MP: Thongs. I really love cute lingerie.

U: What a coincidence, me too! What do you prefer, top or bottom? ...bunk that is!

MP: Top. But bottom for other things!

U: Do you prefer clothes or no clothes when alone around the house?

MP: I go half and half. Not clothes on top, thong on bottom.

U: Tell us something that you would like your fans to know about you.

MP: I absolutely love animals and I am determined to either start my own charity, or just get very involved in charity work. I'm so in to animals and wildlife and I want to do everything possible to help.

U: I know your in a rush to get to your shoot, so thank you for your time, it was great to meet you and I can't wait for the premiere!

MP: Thank you.

Standing Still

Freestyle Releasing/Insomnia Entertainment

Release Date: April 21, 2006

When a group of college friends re-unite for a friends pre-wedding bash, you can only imagine what will happen! Virtually every character has their unique hysterical problems in love, including newfound lesbians, love triangles among friends, a bombshell under-aged sister (Marnette Patterson) and much more! A cast of familiar faces and a hint of drama make this the perfect date movie. Though I'm not embarrassed to say that I thoroughly enjoyed it with my platonic buddy, Mikey Oliveria!

Keep your eyes open for this and other great films to come from Insomnia Entertainment.

Colin Hanks, James Van der Beek, Ethan Embry; (front row) Marnette Patterson, Lauren German, Mena Suvari, Jon Abrahams
